

Abstract

The present invention provides a process to use saline water having more than 25000ppm of salinity for leather processing by treating the raw hides/skins with salts of alkali metals/alkali earth metals.